WELCOME

Welcome to Arizona!

Millions of people visit us every year, and for good reason. Whether you're seeking adventure or relaxation, Arizona offers something for everyone. From the iconic Grand Canyon to world-class resorts, amazing outdoor recreation, diverse culture, dynamic nightlife, a fantastic food scene—we've got it all.

We're proud to be one of the top destinations for visitors from around the world. Whether it's your first time here or you're a regular, there's always something new to discover.

In Arizona, you'll meet some of the friendliest people anywhere. You'll experience some of the greatest resorts, parks, restaurants, attractions and communities out there. And our travel sector is united to put your health and wellness first.

You'll like Arizona so much you might find yourself wanting to stay: More than 70 percent of adult residents of Arizona were born somewhere else. It's a testament to our amazing quality of life that so many people choose Arizona as their home.

Arizona is open, safe and ready to welcome you with open arms. We've led the nation in our vaccine rollout, and millions of Arizonans have rolled up their sleeves to keep our communities healthy. So come join us, and experience the Grand Canyon State for yourself.

From all of us here in Arizona, we can't wait to see you!

y C. Da

DOUG DUCEY Governor, State of Arizona

Destinations across Arizona often create a lasting impression. But what makes Arizona truly unique is its ability to inspire an adventurous spirit in visitors and residents alike. This ability to inspire served as a guiding principle for this year's Arizona Official State Travel Guide, and we're excited to share it with you.

Gates Pass, Tucson

We're glad you're visiting, whether it's your first trip or you visit us every year. Here are just a few highlights to kick off your exploration.

Millions have experienced the awe of the Grand Canyon, with millions more anticipating their first trip. The family-friendly Bright Angel Trail, with its beautiful views and convenient amenities, is a great place to start. Already mastered Bright Angel? Seasoned visitors may prefer the challenges of the South Kaibab Trail, which offers glimpses of the Colorado River and three turnaround points for day hikes. Explore The Grand Canyon: Been There? Do This starting on page 6.

Country music artist Mitchell Tenpenny chose Arizona as the site to film the video for his hit song "Bucket List," which features some of our state's can't-miss places. We invite you to explore the state like Mitchell with Well Lived: Bucket List Adventures of a Lifetime starting on page 12. You'll find some famous places that are probably already on your must-do list, and you'll learn about many more that surely should be added.

Perhaps the best part of discovering and rediscovering Arizona is our amazing arts, crafts and culinary scenes. Arizona's master crafters, builders and makers continuously channel their creativity into unique, only-in-Arizona experiences and products. It's a great time to Meet the Makers starting on page 28.

Whether having a long-awaited reunion with friends and family or a much-needed romantic getaway—Arizona's ability to surprise and delight awaits every visitor. I invite you to enjoy the diversity and splendor of the Grand Canyon State!

Sebbie Johnson

Antelope Canyon Tribal Park, Page

Arizona may be known as the Grand Canyon State, but spectacular viewpoints and awe-inspiring moments are all around. Hike through shaded stands of Ponderosa pine forests where cool creeks ripple through the valley, or explore sun-drenched deserts in search of dramatic sandstone formations, from soaring arches to undulating waves. This is the place where archeological treasures and Old West haunts connect us to the past and where innovative museums and culinary creations look to the future. Here, you could easily unwind in a natural hot spring or melt away your stress in a luxurious spa. And there are unforgettable moments all along the way, whether riding a locomotive to the Grand Canyon, kayaking your way to a Tuscan-style winery or uncovering old-school kitsch along Route 66. Rediscover your sense of awe and adventure. It's all here.

EXPERIENCE THE GRAND CANYON

The Grand Canyon has been amazing humans for as long as humans have been around to lay eyes on it. The Hopi revere the Grand Canyon as the place of their emergence. Explorer John Wesley Powell declared that its beauty could not be adequately represented by speech or art. The astronaut Harrison Schmitt, trying to describe what it was like to set foot on the moon, compared the feeling to three things: falling in love for the first time, the birth of his first child and "standing on the rim of the Grand Canyon." At 277 miles long, as much as 18 miles wide and a full mile deep, the Grand Canyon is the second-largest canyon on the planet, and its colorful walls contain rock layers—the oldest of those layers being 1.8 billion years old—that reveal a timeline of Earth's history. In 1919, the Grand Canyon was designated a national park, and since then, the National Park Service has been preserving the culture, history and natural beauty of this immortal destination, as well as welcoming generations of visitors to experience its wonder.

HIKING

Regarded as the safest trail in Grand Canyon National Park, the family-friendly Bright Angel Trail offers beautiful views and convenient amenities such as potable water stations, restrooms and covered shelters along the way. The first switchback is an ideal spot for turning around if you have small children in tow, and the 1.5-Mile Resthouse is a popular stop for first-time canyon hikers and late starters. Boasting stunning canyon views the entire way, as well as glimpses of the Colorado River farther down, the steep and strenuous South Kaibab Trail offers three turnaround points for day-hikes: Ooh-Aah Point (1.8 mi. RT), Cedar Ridge (3 mi. RT) and Skeleton Point (6 mi. RT). Just remember, the hike back up takes approximately twice as long than the way down, so plan accordingly.

SCENIC VIEWPOINT

Go for a scenic drive along the 22-mile Desert View Drive and pull over at the many overlooks along the way, such as Grandview Point, Moran Point, Tusayan Pueblo, Lipan Point, Navajo Point and Desert View, where you'll find the Mary Colter-designed Desert View Watchtower, built in 1932 in the style of Ancestral Puebloan towers, with historic murals by famous Hopi artist Fred Kabotie. Climb aboard the free shuttle bus to follow the 7-mile Hermit Road (open to private vehicles December–February) to explore the west end of the Grand Canyon Village. Nine overlooks dot the way, and some of the most popular stops include Hopi Point, Mohave Point and Hermits Rest. Whether you come for sunrise or sunset, it's sure to be spectacular.

SIGHTSEEING

Stroll the mostly paved Rim Trail to explore local history: the Yavapai Museum of Geology, with its educational exhibits; Verkamp's Visitor Center, one of the oldest buildings in the Village; Hopi House, a 1905 Mary Colterdesigned Hopi pueblo-style structure; Mary Colter's Lookout Studio, a gift shop with books on the Grand Canyon; and Kolb Studio, showcasing art and history exhibits.

Perk up to the welcoming aroma of freshly brewed coffee as you walk through the doors of Bright Angel Bicycles & Café at Mather Point, where you can start your morning with a latte and a bike ride. Rent a cruiser and pedal approximately 7 miles round trip along the paved Greenway Trail and a traffic-restricted road (shuttle buses only) to the panoramic Yaki Point.

GUIDED TOUR

Hop in a custom Hummer with Buck Wild Hummer Tours for a two-hour open-air adventure led by a knowledgeable tour guide who will stop at some of the Grand Canyon's most popular overlooks. Or ride in a bright pink, safari-style Jeep with Pink Adventure Tours, which pairs a guided tour of three Grand Canyon viewpoints with tickets to the IMAX film Grand Canyon: The Hidden Secrets. Get a bird's-eye view of the deepest and widest part of the South Rim on the 30-minute North Canyon helicopter tour by Papillon Grand Canyon Helicopters. Depart near the Grand Canyon Village and soar over the Kaibab National Forest, the Colorado River and the Grand Canyon's North Rim, taking in sky-high views of spectacular rock formations, cliffs and canyon depths along the way.

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO Practical Planning Tips

PEAK SEASON

BEST TIME TO VISIT

With the kids out of school, summertime is undoubtedly the busiest time of year, as visitors from all over the world come to the Grand Canyon to enjoy camping, outdoor adventures and family vacations. If you're staying during this time, be sure to book your lodging early, as reservations start filling up nine months to a year in advance. For cooler weather, lighter crowds and better lodging availability, plan your trip

May -> October

January --> February

during winter months.

WHERE TO STAY Bring your tent or RV to enjoy the great outdoors at one of the many campsites in the park. Two of the three National Park Service campgrounds accept reservations: Mather Campground on the South Rim and North Rim Campground. On the South Rim, Desert View Campground is first-come, first-serve, and Trailer Village RV Park is a concessioner-run RV park with full hook-ups.

If roughing it isn't quite your style, choose from numerous hotels, both inside and outside the park. Located at the top of Bright Angel Trailhead, the historic Bright Angel Lodge & Cabins provides rustic accommodations close to outdoor adventure. Take your pick from budget-friendly lodge rooms with shared bathrooms, standard lodge rooms with private bathrooms or private cabins (one of which was home to one of President Roosevelt's "Rough Riders"). Thunderbird Lodge and Kachina Lodge are popular choices for families, due to their convenient location within walking distance to many of the park's attractions, while the newly opened Maswick Lodge is a freshly remodeled historic lodging option nearby. Perched on the edge of the South Rim, the European chalet-style El Tovar Hotel, which opened in 1905, offers spectacular views, one-of-a-kind rooms and suites, and fine dining in the famous El Tovar Dining Room. Just a mile from the entrance of the park in nearby Tusayan, The Grand Hotel at The Grand Canyon is the area's only AAA Three Diamond hotel. The rustic chalet-style hotel offers an indoor swimming pool, plus a steakhouse and saloon.

On the North Rim (open mid-May to mid-October, weather dependent), book one of the cozy cabins at the historic Grand Canyon Lodge North Rim to stay amid towering pine trees and just steps away from the Bright Angel Point Trail. This landmark lodge boasts cliffside views and an on-site restaurant serving up hearty, regionally inspired dishes.

GETTING AROUND

Take advantage of the Grand Canyon National Park's free shuttle buses that operate on set routes* throughout the park. including the new Visitor Center Plaza to Hermit Road Express Bus; Kaibab Rim (Orange) Eastbound Route, connecting the visitor center to three scenic stops; the Hermit Road (Red) Route, connecting Grand Canyon Village and Hermits Rest, with scenic overlook stops along the way; and the early-morning Hikers' Express, which transports hikers to the South Kaibab Trailhead from the Backcountry Information Center.

For a $90 fee (one way), the Trans-Canyon Shuttle takes visitors between the North and South Rims.

*Be sure to check routes before arriving, as schedules and routes are subject to change.

SOUTH RIM

Most easily accessible from Phoenix, Sedona or Flagstaff, the South Rim welcomes more visitors than the North Rim and offers the most amenities and attractions in terms of lodging, dining, tours, transportation, viewpoints and family-friendly experiences. It is also open year-round. As this area tends to be much busier—particularly during peak season—be sure to book reservations well in advance.

5 HOURS: approximate drive time between North and South Rims

NORTH RIM

Quieter, more remote and offering fewer services, this rugged portion of Grand Canyon National Park receives fewer visitors and offers a more outdoor-minded experience. Due to its higher elevation, the North Rim is also cooler in temperature and experiences heavy snowfall in winter, resulting in a shorter season. (It's open from mid-May through mid-October.)

BASECAMP A BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO CAMPING IN ARIZONA

BY ELIZABETH EXLINE

PICK UP SKILLS Discover your inner adventurer with an Arizona Family Campout. Facilitated by Arizona State Parks and Trails, this one-night adventure for beginners demystifies the experience. Learn skills like how to pitch a tent and manage your water while hiking, plus fishing and geocaching at some of the state's most iconic destinations including Catalina and Patagonia Lake State Parks. Be sure to book early, as spots fill up quickly. See upcoming dates at azstateparks.com/family-camp.

SELECT YOUR SITE Arizona State Parks and Trails has taken the guesswork out of deciding where to camp. Its website offers details like the number of campsites and available amenities at parks across the state. Browse parks by interest (horse trails, hiking, swimming), explore what makes each park unique and reserve a cabin or campsite at azstateparks.com/reserve or 1-877-MY-PARKS. PACK & PREPARE In addition to the basics (think shelter, layered clothing, food and water, sunscreen, toiletries and bug repellant), you'll need to bring essentials like a headlamp or flashlight, map/GPS system, first-aid supplies, fire starters, a towel and soap, toilet paper and cookware.

GET YOUR GEAR Not ready to invest in a tent just yet? No problem. This and other camping essentials are available for rent at places like Peace Surplus in Flagstaff, Arizona Hiking Shack in Phoenix and LowerGear Outdoors in Tempe.

WELL-LIVED BUCKET LIST ADVENTURES OF

Whether you're a nature lover, a foodie, a weekend warrior, a parent, a spiritual seeker or all of the above, Arizona has epic and unforgettable experiences waiting to be crossed off your dream list.

BY KERIDWEN CORNELIUS

WILD WANDERERS

The ultimate life-changing wilderness experience is rafting the Grand Canyon, and there are numerous ways to choose your own adventure, from three-day motorized outings to 18-day oar odysseys. In addition, look for specialty trips: Multisport fans can mix whitewater kayaking with hiking the Canyon's peaceful North Rim. And lovers of craftsmanship can paddle the Colorado River in an elegant, handmade dory. If you prefer hiking poles to paddles, head to the Canyon's western side and trek to Havasu Falls*—a paradise of cascading water and teal-hued travertine pools.

Shutterbugs can go on quests to the state's most stunning photoops, such as Coyote Buttes and The Wave—a mesmerizing swirl of striped sandstone. On the other side of the Vermilion Cliffs is photogenic Antelope Canyon. Photographers make pilgrimages to this slot canyon to capture shafts of sunlight piercing through walls weathered into corkscrew shapes. In Sedona, you can hike to Huckaby Trail, which follows along Oak Creek and rewards with panoramic views of red rock buttes and peaks. When the sun goes down, Arizona is still spectacular. Designated an International Dark-Sky Park, Petrified Forest National Park is a celebrated stargazing spot. Backcountry campers can marvel at this lunar wilderness beneath the light of the Milky Way while tapping into humanity's timeless connection with the cosmos.

FUN FAMILIES

Bucket list experiences are typically once-in-a-lifetime, but families who visit Sprucedale Guest Ranch in Alpine often return year after year. Adults are drawn to dawn horseback rides, when mist rises from the meadows and antelope and elk scamper into the forests. Kids enjoy going free-range, riding in the children's rodeo, crafting fishing poles to catch crawdads, milking cows and laughing with newfound friends on hayrides.

For extra good old-fashioned bonding time, ride in a 1923 Pullman car on the Grand Canyon Railway. Open the windows and let the pinescented air blow through your hair as the train chugs from Williams to the South Rim. Combine your journey with a stay at the plush Grand Canyon Railway Hotel, designed to resemble the 1908 hotel that's now part of the Williams train depot.

*BACKCOUNTRY PERMITS

To preserve some of Arizona's more popular—and fragile wilderness destinations, visitation is limited via a permitting system. To visit Havasu Falls, make a reservation well in advance (havasupaireservations.com). In the Paria Canyon-Vermilion Cliffs Wilderness, Coyote Buttes North (The Wave) and Coyote Buttes South require a day-use permit, granted through a lottery system (recreation.gov/permits/274309). Permits are also required to visit Upper and Lower Antelope Canyon, which are issued by licensed guides and tour operators (discovernavajo.com).

sandstone beach, fish for largemouth bass, and watch the sun set as you roast s'mores in a campfire.

Westin Kierland Resort & Spa in Scottsdale offers more wet and wild fun—plus urban amenities. At the resort's Adventure Water Park, kids can simulate surfing on a flowboard, tube on a lazy river and rocket down a 110-foot water slide.

SOUL SEARCHERS

Arizona is renowned for resorts and wellness centers dedicated to helping people live healthier and more fulfilling lives. In Tucson's Catalina Mountains, you'll find a unique experience at Miraval Arizona Resort & Spa, where the therapists have four legs. Horses are highly attuned to human emotions and can serve as windows into the soul. So during Miraval's equine therapy sessions, guests can learn to overcome trauma and anxiety, communicate more authentically, uncover false beliefs and become more present in the moment.

The folks at Civana Wellness Resort & Spa in Carefree know that being in nature soothes inflammation, settles stress hormones and strengthens the ability to focus. That's why they cultivate a sense of calm through an array of alfresco activities. Civana hosts yoga on the lawn, meditation in the rose garden, outdoor labyrinth walking, sunset sound healing and forest bathing in the saguaro forests.

Arizona's spiritual center is Sedona, where swirling fields of energy called vortexes are said to suffuse people with inspiration and healing. Aumbase Sedona hosts outdoor yoga in a vortex, where you can clear your chakras while marveling at views of vermilioncolored mountains.

Or peer into the endless night sky beneath countless stars when you stay at the newly opened Clear Sky Resorts, located approximately 30 minutes from the Grand Canyon National Park's South Rim. You'll stay in your very own geodesic dome complete with panoramic windows, a skylight and a telescope—perfect for late-night stargazing.

 \rightarrow

FOODIES

Do you long to break out of your walled-in world and enter an open-air food fantasy in nature? Cloth & Flame can bring those imaginings to life. This couplerun company choreographs unforgettable farm-to-table dinners on fairy-lit, flower-festooned tables set in wild places. They've hosted ticketed events in the Superstition Mountains, Sedona's red rocks, Flagstaff's aspen forests and the edge of the Grand Canyon.

The great outdoors always makes food and drink taste better—and never more so than when you've earned them. With Sedona Adventure Tours, you'll launch a kayak near Cottonwood and paddle the tree-canopied Verde River. Then decant at Alcantara Vineyards to taste wines in a Tuscan-inspired farmhouse and watch bald eagles soar over the grapevines.

Farm-to-table fare doesn't get any fresher than when you can point to the fields, trees and garden that produced your dinner. At Quiessence in Phoenix, diners feast in the backyard of the farmhouse at the Farm at South Mountain. Chef Dustin Christofolo follows a slow food philosophy, so you can linger over the layered flavors of heirloom, artisanal ingredients as you sit under romantic stringed lights.

In nearby Cornville, you can experience a quintessential summer treat: picking fruits, then eating them fresh from the tree. At Folded Hills Orchard, gather juicy peaches, crisp apples, tart plums and sweet blackberries from mid-June to September.

ATHLETIC ASPIRERS

Fitness events barely get more bucket list-y than the Bisbee 1000, the only outdoor stair climb in the country. Every October, participants run or walk 4.5 miles on steps that wind through Bisbee's colorful streets. Don a quirky costume and peek at quaint houses and gardens as you jog on paths where mules once trotted to copper mines.

If your goal is to complete a full or half-marathon, the party atmosphere at the Rock 'n' Roll Marathon will keep you motivated. Live bands stationed throughout the course pump up the 30,000-odd runners who race along Tempe Town Lake, past Papago Park's red rocks and through the greenbelts of Scottsdale. Looking for a teamoriented adventure? Gather a group of eight and tackle the Ragnar Trail Arizona relay race through McDowell Mountain Regional Park near Scottsdale. Teams run day and night on saguaro-dotted peaks, covering a total of 120 miles-about 15 miles per person.

For cyclists, the EI Tour de Tucson is the classic charity-supporting ride. Tucson is a designated gold-level Bicycle Friendly Community, so two-wheelers from across the country beeline here to pedal 1 to 100 miles through brightly colored barrios and Sonoran Desert scenery.

See the iconic Arizona spots where musician Mitchell Tenpenny filmed his "Bucket List" music video.

Step back in time by stepping aboard the Grand Canyon Railway. Enjoy breathtaking views, personal attendants sharing regional information and centuries-old folklore, while roaming musicians play tunes of the Old West. All on a fully restored, turn-of-the-century historic train. Start your grand adventure by calling 1-800-THE-TRAIN or visit thetrain.com.

RANCH RETREAT

In Arizona, wide-open spaces are left just like they're meant to bewell, wide and open. Cowboys still ride the range and coyotes serenade the rising moon. Here, the West still lives and breathes. All you need to join in is a hat and a horse. Both are waiting for you. Escape to the Arizona backcountry with a stay at one of the state's many guest ranches, where the creak of your saddle and the crackle of your campfire nod to a slower pace of life and simpler pleasures.

Hidden away on 590 acres in Sasabe—and surrounded by 120,000 acres of the Buenos Aires Wildlife Refuge-it's easy to imagine what life was like hundreds of years ago when you stay at historic Rancho de la Osa. Throughout the centuries, these secluded grounds have been home to the Tohono O'odham people, Spanish missionaries, Mexican revolutionaries and cattle ranchers. Fill your days with horseback riding, sport shooting, mountain biking, hiking, birdwatching or simply taking in the sweeping views of mountains and lush desert grasslands.

Want even more of a Wild West escape? Built to resemble a Western town, Tombstone Monument Ranch sits just outside the most famous Western town of all: Tombstone. Get a good night's sleep in turn-of-the-century rooms. You'll want to be well rested for all the riding options and other activities offered, like cattle penning, archery and UTV tours. You can even saddle up and ride to the famous O.K. Corral. When the sun goes down, push through the swinging doors of the saloon to enjoy the evening's entertainment.

At Stagecoach Trails Guest Ranch in Yucca, focus on honing your Wild West skill set, such as barrel racing, target shooting, archery and billiards. Located in northwestern Arizona, this all-inclusive ranch features a variety of riding options, including loping and trotting through desert washes. Oversized rooms are filled with Western décor, and there's also the Pioneer Wagon for families that yearn to sleep under the stars—though quite comfortably.

For a part guest ranch, part resort where casual luxury is the norm, Rancho de los Caballeros translates loosely to "Ranch of the Gentlemen on Horseback," and that tells you what to expect at this getaway in Wickenburg. Rooms are scattered about the grounds in lovely casitas. Sumptuous meals are served in the festive dining room. The ranch features daily horseback rides, a full-service spa, trap and skeet range, tennis courts, swimming pool and an 18-hole golf course considered one of the best in the state. In Arizona, that's high praise indeed.

Tanque Verde Ranch in Tucson also offers a luxury-meets-adventure experience, where your day could just as easily include yoga and tennis or fishing and archery. Start your day with a Breakfast Ride—a horseback ride through rolling hillsides and towering cacti, ending with a blueberry pancake breakfast cooked for you in the scenic outdoors. After a day of excursions, unwind with a massage or body treatment at La Sonora Spa and a prickly pear margarita at the saloon. lust want a guick Wild West trip? Even if you're not booking an overnight getaway, experienced outfitters can still put you in the saddle. Less than an hour east of Phoenix, venture into the Sonoran Desert with an experienced guide at O.K. Corral Stables in Apache Junction. Beginners (and travelers short on time) can ride through the foothills on an easy half-hour ride, while more adventurous riders can opt for an all-day ride through the Goldfield Mountains or the Superstition Mountain Wilderness. No matter which adventure you choose, the views are spectacular.

STORIES OF THE ANCIENTS

To truly understand Arizona means walking ancient paths. Take time to learn about the first peoples that populated the land as you explore prehistoric dwellings, the weathered remains of entire villages, artwork etched into rocks, relics and artifacts that are all part of the archeological legacy left behind by different cultures. These are the stories that shaped Arizona.

BY ROGER NAVI OR

No one forgets their first sighting of building techniques and materials the ancient high-rise of Montezuma used by these resourceful people. Castle National Monument.

Tucked in an alcove in a limestone wall, the imposing five-story cliff dwelling perches above the Beaver Creek floodplain at the edge of Camp Verde. Early settlers believed it belonged to Aztec emperor Montezuma, and the name stuck. A paved trail meanders beneath the shade of graceful sycamore trees and leads to scenic viewpoints of the towering cliff house built by the Sinagua people more than 800 years ago.

Rock walls crown a hilltop above the Verde River in Cottonwood and spill down the ridgeline. Tuzigoot National Monument protects the remnants of this ancient Sinagua pueblo built between AD 1125 and 1400. Walk the loop trail to savor the wraparound views of the lush Verde Valley framed by rising mountains. The National Park Service has restored a two-story room at Tuzigoot (Apache for "crooked water") so visitors can admire the

On the quiet prairie north of Flagstaff, the pueblos of Wupatki National Monument rise like red-boned ghosts above swaying grasses. The dwellings were the work of Ancient Puebloans through the centuries, including the Hohokam, Cohonina, Kayenta and Sinagua cultures. They were constructed from thin blocks of Moenkopi sandstone, giving them their distinctive red color. Most were built more than 900 years ago. A paved trail curves past Wupatki Pueblo-at three stories and nearly 100 rooms, the largest structure in the park.

Walnut Canyon National

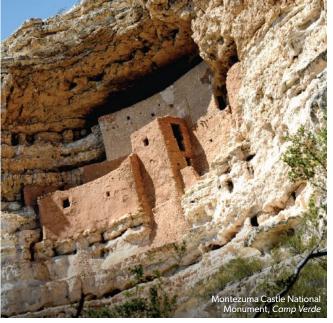

Monument is an upside down Wupatki. Instead of large multiroom pueblos skylined above open prairie, the smaller dwellings of Walnut Canyon are secreted away in this forested gorge east of Flagstaff. The Sinagua people utilized the natural contours of the canyon, building rock shelters in shallow alcoves below the rim. Their cliff dwellings are well preserved, and some can be entered. They survived by farming pockets of soil atop the canyon rim. Why the Sinagua abandoned their homes remains unclear, but it is believed they were eventually assimilated into Hopi culture.

Overlooking Roosevelt Lake, Tonto National Monument showcases two distinctive Salado cliff dwellings. Built in natural caves on the flanks of the Superstition Mountains, the structures date back more than 700 years. The Salado people were known for their artistic flair, producing exquisite pottery and intricate textiles. Artifacts from the site are on display in the visitor center. The Lower Cliff Dwelling is open year-round. The larger Upper Cliff Dwelling is accessible only by guided tours November through April.

Operated by the Bureau of Land Management, Painted Rock

Petroglyph Site and Campground sits amid a lonely stretch of desert, northwest of Gila Bend. Some 800 petroglyphs are carved into a cluster of basalt boulders stacked atop a granite outcropping. The art is thought to be remnants of the Hohokam culture that existed in the area from about AD 350 to 1400. Look for human figures, animals, sun symbols, concentric circles, spirals and mazes. Signs provide historic and cultural information. Campers will enjoy desert quiet and star-laden skies.

Navajo National Monument

protects remarkably preserved Ancestral Puebloan dwellings dating back centuries. Built in a cavernous alcove in the canyon wall, Betatakin was occupied in the late 13th century. Advance reservations are required to make the 17-mile round-trip hike to Keet Seel, the largest cliff dwelling in Arizona. Sheltered by a massive rock overhang, Keet Seel is considered to be the most intact large site in the Southwest, looking very much like inhabitants left it 700 years ago. Granaries, pottery, petroglyphs, timbers and corncobs give archeologists a glimpse into the distant past.

Tucked away amid the colorful badlands of the Petrified Forest National Park, Newspaper Rock displays headlines from centuries ago. More than 650 petroglyphs, some dating back 2,000 years, are spread across several rock faces. Such a high concentration of rock art marks this as a special place. One look at the rolling grasslands punctuated by petrified logs seamed with color and desert hills painted in sunset hues and you know they were right.

TRIBAL MUSEUMS

Amerind Museum, Dragoon Surrounded by the dazzling rock formations of Texas Canyon, the Amerind Museum seeks to promote understanding of America's first peoples through exhibits and artifacts. An impressive art gallery displays works of all Western genres. The beautiful grounds include walking paths and picnic tables set amid the boulder fields.

Heard Museum, Phoenix

Internationally known for its collection of American Indian artifacts and artwork, the Heard gives a contemporary voice to Native cultures. Spacious exhibit galleries and outdoor courtyards feature an array of art in a range of genres and styles, and visitors flock to the Heard for educational programs and vibrant festivals.

Museum of Northern Arizona,

Flagstaff This museum tells the story of the Colorado Plateau. It is a land gnawed by erosion, exposing geologic and scenic wonders ranging from Grand Canyon to Monument Valley to Rainbow Bridge to Canyons of the Ancients. Exhibits encompass the biology, geology, anthropology and art of the region.

Explore Navajo Interactive Museum, Tuba City

Set inside a large dome meant to recall a traditional Navajo Hogan, this 7,000-square-foot facility is one of the best places to discover Diné culture. Visitors will learn about creation stories, ceremonial life, family systems and language.

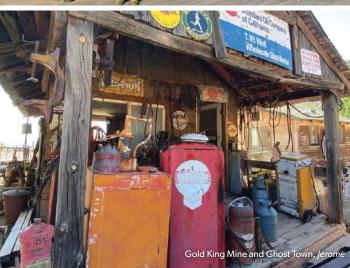

Old West Chost Towns

Time travel may be the stuff of science fiction, but Arizona's ghost towns come close to turning fantasy into reality. From hauntingly restored (and sometimes haunted) buildings, to action-packed gunslinger shootouts, here's how you can return to the past.

BY ELIZABETH EXLINE

Oatman, Arizona became a boomtown when gold was discovered in the early 20th century. Flush with wealth and visitors, the city soon gave rise to the Durlin Hotel, a two-story adobe building best known for having welcomed Clark Gable and Carole Lombard during their honeymoon.

Today, the Durlin Hotel goes by a different name, Oatman Hotel, and its only overnight visitors are the paranormal kind. Several ghosts are rumored to haunt the building, which now functions as a bar and restaurant downstairs and a museum upstairs.

For those who prefer performers with a pulse, the Ghost Rider Gunfighters duke it out with the Red Ridge Marauders every day in the middle of Route 66 next to the Oatman Hotel.

Jerome may be considered the state's most haunted city, but the only ghosts you'll find at Gold King Mine and Ghost Town are automotive. This former gold mining camp is now home to more than 180 vintage cars, trucks and motorcycles.

The eerily named Vulture City, meanwhile, is a ghost town near Wickenburg that consists of around 12 restored buildings including Henry Wickenburg's home. If you go, check out the Hanging Tree where 18 men met the long arm of justice.

Goldfield Ghost Town, meanwhile, offers an Old West experience just outside of Phoenix. In addition to mine tours, panning for gold, gunfights, a shooting gallery and shops selling everything from pottery to soap, this popular destination now also features a zipline.

As possibly the state's most famous historic destination, O.K. Corral in Tombstone captures the rough-andtumble spirit of frontier days. This town center offers impressively preserved buildings as well as three daily reenactments of the gunfight that made Wyatt Earp a household name.

The Kentucky Camp, located in the Coronado National Forest, takes a quieter approach to history. This abandoned mining camp features two restored buildings—one for day use and one for overnight stays—with basic accommodations. (Don't expect heat or plumbing!)

Farther south, the Queen Mine Tour in Bisbee pulls back the curtain on the inner workings of a turn-of-the-century mine. Pack a sweater—the underground mines are notoriously chilly—and get ready to learn something new from the retired-miners-turned-tour-guides.

MINDFUL MOMENTS

BY IVY MORRIS

A lot can be said about the experiences you can have in Arizona—just try to sum up the incredible heat of a salsa you tasted near the Mexican border or the colors of a sunset over Sedona's red rocks.

But some of the most impactful moments you can have in the Grand Canyon State are the ones that cause words to fail. Places where you're moved to stillness, your surroundings bring you inward and where just a few seconds can stay with you for a lifetime.

Step into a pigmented work of art at the Painted Desert. Here, stratified layers of clay and sandstone form a canvas of color—from brick red to light lavender, as well as ochre and coral—created by millions of years of volcanic eruptions, floods, sunlight and earthquakes.

A large portion of the Painted Desert is located on Navajo Nation, which is also home to Canyon de Chelly National Monument in Chinle. Spanning more than 80,000 acres, Canyon de Chelly National Monument is best known for its White House Ruin cliff dwellings and Spider Rock, an 800-foot sandstone spire that juts out from the landscape. Learn about the history of the Navajo people on a scenic drive along the South or North Rims—each more than 30 miles long. Or lace up your shoes for a 600-foot round-trip, self-guided hike to the White House Overlook on the South Rim. Navajo-led tours are also available from guides registered with the Navajo Parks and Recreation Department.

In Sedona, take a short walk beneath colorful prayer flags to Amitabha Stupa & Peace Park, an outdoor gathering space for reflection, meditation and spiritual seekers of all beliefs. Two Buddhist stupas—the 36-foot Amitabha Stupa and the smaller Tara Stupa-represent one of the oldest forms of sacred architecture on earth and are a rarity in the West. In addition to the stupas, find an American Indian medicine wheel, a wooden statue of Shakyamuni Buddha and several quiet spots for contemplation among piñon and juniper pines.

Nearby, the Courthouse Butte Loop Trail in Sedona is a 3.9mile, moderate hike that circles Courthouse Butte and Bell Rock some of the most famous rock formations among Sedona's red rocks. Bell Rock is also famous for being the location of one of Sedona's four energy vortexes: places with positive intensity and DESERT-INSPIRED SPA TREATMENTS Take a walk through an Arizona desert landscape and you'll find yourself surrounded by healing botanicals for hair, skin and self. Statewide spas make the most of the region's bounty with spa treatments that use area-grown ingredients, like the A'ut Thoachta (Healing Agave Wrap) at Aji Spa at the Sheraton Grand at Wild Horse Pass on the Gila River Indian Community near Chandler, which nourishes skin with raw agave nectar and includes a lavender-infused, soothing aloe vera gel. The Havasupai Falls Rejuvenation at Well & Being Spa at the Fairmont Scottsdale Princess uses a body scrub made from essential oil-infused desert salts and a facial mask made from warm red clay from Sedona for a head-to-toe Southwestern experience. An anti-inflammatory native prickly pear sugar scrub and citrus scent are used to re-energize skin and spirit during the Sonoran Desert Rehydration at Lakeside Spa at Loews Ventana Canyon in Tucson.

Desert Botanical Garden, Phoenix; Oracle State Park, Oracle; McDowell Mountain Regional Park, Fort McDowell

healing qualities. It's been said that a visit to a vortex strengthens a person's inner being and can cause amazing, uplifting transformation. The Courthouse Butte Loop Trail brings you close to the energy, but to get closer, hike the 1.1-mile Bell Rock trail (which connects to the Courthouse Butte Loop Trail), where views from above are worth the scramble.

More than 21,000 acres are yours to explore at McDowell Mountain Regional Park in Fort McDowell, where the desert and lower Verde River basin becomes a playground for hikers, mountain bikers and horseback riders. Keep your eyes open; the park offers views of the Four Peaks and the distinct Weavers Needle spire, and you may see javelina, coyotes and deer.

Ponder the vastness of the universe at Oracle State Park, an International Dark-Sky Park in the northern foothills of the Catalina Mountains, where the unobstructed sky views and supreme darkness create perfect conditions for seeing the Milky Way and other celestial bodies. After park hours, access the American Avenue Parking Area for nighttime stargazing.

The best place to be earlier in the day? Yavapai Point, within the Grand Canyon Village. Take in sunset views: below a changing sky of magenta, burning orange, indigo and violet, spot the river and Isis Temple to the north, and peaks all the way to the Desert View viewpoint to the east. Yavapai Point is the northernmost point of the South Rim of the Grand Canyon and the closest to the Colorado River.

The Fine Family Contemplation Garden is situated at the heart of the Desert Botanical Garden in Phoenix and was created as a place to center the self. Within the Kitchell Family Heritage Garden, on the 0.3mile Desert Discovery Loop Trail, the multisensory space connects past and present. Photos from the 1940s show the area planted with small cactus, which stand tall today, surrounding a swirling, circular labyrinth made of high-contrast terrazzo. Shallow water features multiply the surrounding flora and fauna in their reflections and serve as resting spots for birds.

ARIZONA UNPLUGGED restful retreats for a digital detox

Think back to your last vacation. Perhaps there was a beach or a spa or snow-skiing. Most certainly, there was a smartphone involved. (For a few overworked souls, there may have even been a laptop.) Yet for all the pervasiveness of digital devices, the pendulum is beginning to swing the other way. Tech-free retreats are the new "it" vacations, and it sounds like it's just in time-we all could use a digital detox. Disconnect for awhile and recharge your mind at these quiet escapes throughout Arizona's remote landscapes, where the scenery is far superior to the cell reception.

Escape to a Southwestern paradise with your own private casita at the base of Boynton Canyon when you stay at Sedona's Enchantment Resort, where blazing red rock, aquamarine swimming pools and vibrant green tennis courts set the scene for visual splendor. You won't even notice the limited cell phone signal, as you'll find plenty of ways to stay occupied: hiking Boynton Canyon Trail through an energy vortex, marveling at the soaring Fay Canyon Arch, mountain biking through miles of desert trails, teeing off at the exclusive 18-hole, Tom Weiskopfdesigned course at Seven Canyons Golf Club and taking part in mind-body experiences such as Qi Gong and Vinyasa yoga. At the end of your day, use all your senses at Che Ah Chi restaurant, featuring American Indian-influenced cuisine, an award-winning wine list and awe-inspiring views of red rock canyon walls.

Also in the area is Junipine Resort, a quiet escape with private condo-style accommodations amid the forests of Oak Creek Canyon, about 8 miles from the artisan shops and gourmet eateries of downtown Sedona. Bask in the sounds of nature from your wrap-around deck, cozy up next to your wood-burning fireplace and stroll the hiking trails latticing throughout the 12-acre estate. Nearby West Fork Trail in the Secret Mountain Wilderness offers even more natural beauty.

Synonymous with renewal of the mind, body and spirit for more than four decades, Canyon Ranch in Tucson is the ultimate escape for a reset. Turn off your phone for a few days and make the most of this all-inclusive experience, where you'll spend your time exploring the sprawling spa complex, enjoying outdoor adventures from archery to hiking, moving your body with yoga or tennis, and honing your mind with meditation and sound healing. Bonus: the breathtaking scenery of the surrounding Santa Catalina Mountains provides the ultimate stress-free environment.

Another luxury option is The Ritz-Carlton Dove Mountain in Marana, boasting the dramatic beauty of the Tortolita Mountains paired with plush accommodations. Leave your phone in your room as you sunbathe at the hotel's three swimming pools, when you unwind with a gemstoneinspired treatment at the spa or when you're focusing on your golf game on the three lack Nicklaus-designed courses. When you're ready to venture off-property, follow the 6.8-mile Wild Burro Loop to be surrounded by desert flora of all kinds, from mesquite and ironwood trees to saguaro and barrel cacti.

For a more casual getaway immersed in natural beauty, Aravaipa Farms Orchard and Inn in Winkelman is the spot. Surrounded by fruit trees and the Aravaipa Canyon Wilderness, the inn offers a garden and orchard, spotty Wi-Fi and no televisions. Guests have plenty of time for hiking, bird watching and eating the farm-to-table dinners offered nightly. "It's funny how many people get out here and say, 'It was so nice not to have my phone dinging all the time,'" says co-owner Jill Madden. "I think people want that more than they admit."

Located an hour north of Phoenix, Castle Hot Springs requires visitors to traverse just over 7 miles of unpaved roads before they arrive, but the remote locale in the Bradshaw Mountains makes the journey worth it. Guests can soak in thermal pools, tour the 3-acre farm and, since Castle Hot Springs is a refuge from light pollution, soak up views of a dazzling night sky. While the Wi-Fi is strong, cell service is not, so be ready to hang up and follow the resort's motto: "disconnect to reconnect."

At the safari-style Under Canvas Grand Canyon, guests enjoy the best of the natural world (160 acres of forest near Grand Canyon National Park's South Rim) with just enough amenities to keep city slickers happy. Cozy up in a spacious tent outfitted with rustic-chic West Elm furniture, a real bed and a private bathroom. During the day, indulge in outdoor fun like driving tours and guided hiking. As for your devices, leave them in the car. The intentional lack of Wi-Fi is meant to inspire a connection with the great outdoors.

If completely off-grid is your goal, Shash Diné Eco-Retreat outside Page is a natural choice. Located on tribal lands and steeped in Navajo traditions, this rustic (think: no running water or electricity) bed-and-breakfast offers an authentic Navajo Experience, which includes a three-night stay in a traditional earth-and-log hogan, mutton and vegetable dinner, Navajo storytelling and sweeping vistas of desert lands. Other accommodation options include glamping tents, an Old West-style covered wagon and an ultra-modern metal "cabin" called the Kyoob. At night, gather around a campfire and take in the dazzling night sky filled with countless glittering stars.

Whether you're camping in Arizona's vast desert or tucked into a sumptuous suite at a five-star hotel, the important part of disconnecting isn't the surroundings—it's reconnecting with what matters most: Your loved ones, yourself and the ever-fleeting bliss of being in the present moment.

THE ZEN OF GOLF

BY TOM MACKIN

Birds chirping, a mild breeze blowing, the gentle whir of golf carts off in the distance the natural soundtrack of golfing lends itself to being in the "here and now," to immersing yourself in the present moment—ideal, since the mental challenge of the game requires maintained focus. Escape from your everyday life, if only for a few hours, with these luxurious golf resorts that pair mindbody experiences, spectacular scenery and world-class courses.

Quieting the mind is not always easy to do, but it's very possible at The Boulders Resort & Spa in Scottsdale. Strolling around a meditation labyrinth helps spa and resort guests clear away stress and provide a level of mental clarity useful to playing well. That elevated consciousness is sure to help on the peaceful North and South Courses, both of which are dotted with massive, ancient examples of the resort's namesake.

The Mitakuye Oyasin Morning Ritual at the JW Marriott Tucson Starr Pass Resort & Spa is a centuries-old method of starting each day in a positive manner. Held at the resort's Salud Terrace, the traditional American Indian ceremony includes the burning of sage and an eagle feather blessing, helping guests connect with nature and find a focused mindset. Use the latter to your advantage out on the resort's 18-hole layout (formerly the Rattler and Roadrunner nines) or try your luck on the walker-friendly Coyote nine-hole course. Just south of downtown Sedona sits Hilton Sedona Resort at Bell Rock. Natural beauty and awe-inspiring views set the meditative vibe here. Get your head in the game with a Signature Sedona Energy treatment at the onsite Eforea Spa, where soothing massage techniques are interwoven with energy work such as Reiki, sound healing and chakra balancing. Then, tee it up at the adjacent Sedona Golf Resort, featuring a 6,646-yard, par-71 course surrounded by dramatic buttes and the dome of Bell Rock.

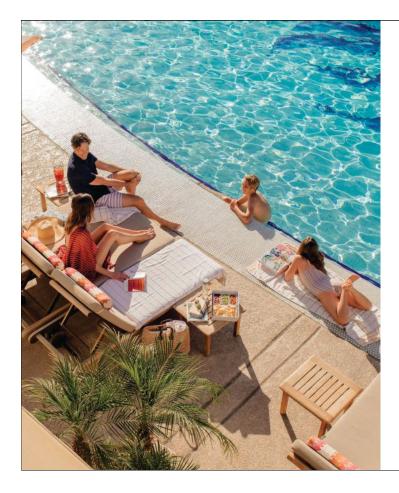

THE WESTIN KIERLAND RESORT & SPA

Indulge in rare, rejuvenating spa and salon therapies. Choose from more than 300 labels at The Scotch Library. Play 27 holes of championship golf on a fleet of transports. Embark on a culinary adventure through 10 dining venues. Surf in the desert on the Kierland FlowRider surfboarding simulator. Retreat to luxurious accommodations designed to renew and restore. Experience Kierland, create forever memories.

MEET THE MAKERS

There's a certain feeling you get from a handcrafted item, of holding something carefully created by skillful hands an item made by one person for another. Crafters, builders, makers—their work tells stories about a place as much as the place influences their work. Consider how the unique mix of Arizona's climate and soil creates the perfect environment for small-batch wine and varieties of lavender. Or the way many native animals and plants (like Arizona's iconic saguaro) inspire and adorn a number of products and art. Get a glimpse into some of the state's many talented makers, craftsmen and culinary artisans, and be sure to shop their wares to take a piece of Arizona home with you.

IVA (HONWYNUM) HONYESTEWA OF ISKASOKPU GALLERY

In a small room that connects Iskasokpu Gallery to the home of Iva-Hopi name Honwynum, which means "Female Bear Walking"-Honyestewa, floorto-ceiling shelves line the walls, and a window looks out over an Arizona canyon striated in color. She weaves two traditional Hopi baskets, the coil (poota) and the sifter (tutsaya) using yucca gathered from Hopi tribal lands. "The preparation takes a couple weeks to gather your yucca," says Honyestewa, "to clean it, to split it, to dye it." She uses natural plant-based dyes to create the bold, bright colors for which she is known. For Honyestewa, basketweaving is both a spiritual endeavor and a communal activity. When she weaves alone, it's meditation. When she weaves with others, it's a time to talk and laugh. Her creation, the pootsaya, emerged in 2014, during her artist residency at the School for Advanced Research in Santa Fe, and it's the first of its kind in the world. Now, Honyestewa and her niece Reba Ann Lomayestewa, whom Honyestewa taught how to weave the pootsaya, are the only basketweavers making it.

ATSUO SAKURAI OF ARIZONA SAKE

Yokohama native Atsuo Sakurai settled in Holbrook and began making his native country's most well-known beverage—sake, or Japanese rice wine—out of a garage. Not only has he seen huge success (chefs, restaurateurs and distributors snatch up Sakurai's sake as fast as he can bottle it), but he's received some of the highest honors in the Japanese sake world. His product, Arizona Sake, was awarded the title "World's Best Sake Made Outside Japan" at Tokyo's Sake Competition. Sakurai makes his junmai ginjo sake in small batches using traditional ingredients of rice, yeast, water-specifically, Arizona water—and a (good) fungus called koji. He attributes the flavor of his sake to the fact it's unfiltered and unpasteurized, giving it a pure taste, and the region's cold, dry temperatures help with the fermentation process. In the garage, the tanks are filled with fermenting sake, giving off a fruity aroma reminiscent of apples and bananas. After three weeks of fermenting and filtration, the sake is bottled, labeled and ready to savor.

STEPHEN PAUL OF HAMILTON DISTILLERS

One evening in 2006, Stephen Paul and his wife Elaine were barbecuing over mesquite wood scraps from the couples' custom furniture company, Arroyo Design, and drinking their beverage of choice—Scotch. Then Elaine asked a question: "What if you could malt barley over a mesquite fire instead of a peat fire like they do in Scotland?" Stephen Paul got to thinking. What if you could? Little did they know, this single question laid the foundation for what would become Hamilton Distillers, a boutique whiskey distillery in Tucson named one of the best whiskey distilleries in America by Esquire magazine. Today, Hamilton Distillers is beloved for its three regional whiskeys—Dorado, Clear and Classic each under the label Whiskey Del Bac. Drinkers can expect to taste notes of caramel, vanilla and occasionally butterscotch in the mesquite-smoked varieties and black cherry in the aged whiskeys. Sample all three on a 1.5hour tour of the distillery, followed by a guided tasting experience.

DON GUERRA OF BARRIO BREAD

On any given day, devoted locals fill the tiny space of Barrio Bread, eager to buy fresh artisanal loaves known for their signature, multitextured feel and taste: crispy on the outside and chewy and airy on the inside. To create his beloved bread, owner and Arizona native Don Guerra employs a French-style technique that relies on the starter levain, or French sourdough, as the foundation of the bread. Guerra also sources organic, mostly locally grown heritage grains in all of the 3,700 loaves he makes weekly. And his oven, like the grains in the bread, is rooted in artisanal tradition-a gigantic Italian deck oven imported from Verona, Italy. On the Barrio menu, you'll see a loaf called Desert Durum—nutty in flavor, crunchy in texture. And stenciled on the top of the dough? The signature saguaro—an image now synonymous with not only the Barrio brand but Arizona itself. Buy a loaf of your own at Barrio Bread's storefront in Tucson at Broadway Village.

TERRY VESCI OF PINE CREEK LAVENDER FARM

Nestled in the mountains of north-central Arizona sits Pine Creek Canyon Lavender Farm in Pine. It's here that owner Terry Vesci, a lawyer turned farmer, and her husband Rick, hand-harvest 5,000 lavender plants on a homestead settled by pioneers in the late 1800s. The aromatic Grosso variety shows up in Terry's artisanal products, such as soaps and lotions, and she uses Royal Velvet and Provence varieties in her culinary goodies like tea, cocoa, lavender salt and lavender-lemon pepper. Step inside the hand-hewn log shed that doubles as the farm's gift shop to browse the shelves stocked with all-natural products made from the bounty of Terry's and Rick's lavender fields. While you're there, don't forget to stop and smell the flowers.

WENDELL CROW OF CROW'S DAIRY

High school sweethearts Wendell and Rhonda Crow were cattle dairy farmers in Tolleson, Arizona, But about 10 years ago, they "converted" to goats and never looked back. Their 5-acre Grade A farmstead in Buckeye is home to 300 Anglo-Nubian goats whose milk produces enough artisan cheese to service 110 restaurants and a handful of retail outlets, including dozens of farmers' markets, around Arizona. Find Crow's Dairy products at area farmers' markets such as Uptown Farmers Market in Central Phoenix, Momma's Organic Market in Peoria and Tempe Farmers Market, as well as on the menus of Arizona eateries such as FnB in Scottsdale and Lon's at the Hermosa Inn in Paradise Valley.

ERIC WATSON OF WATSON'S HAT SHOP

In Arizona, we know about cowboy culture, and no piece completes the look more than the iconic cowboy hat. Many in search of that perfect accessory find their way to Watson's Hat Shop in Cave Creek, where master hatter Eric Watson crafts wearable works of art. As a young craftsman, Watson reveled in the details and the history of the craft, so much so that he purchased antique machinery (some dating from the 1800s) on which to make and restore hats. A 1900s-era crown iron machine purrs and clicks as it molds beaver felt onto a hat block. The 1926 blocking table hisses as steam shapes hat brims. Shelves of centuries-old wood hat blocks stretch from floor to ceiling. And amid the symphony of sounds, Watson, his wife Emily and apprentice Alex Cabrera stitch thread, stretch felt, size heads and sew ribbons. Even if you're not in the market for a custom, handmade hat, you're sure to find Watson's detailed 64-step process fascinating.

2 Sphinx Date Co. Palm & Pantry, Scottsdale: Local flavors are the draw at this farm and gourmet food shop filled with Arizona-made wines, gifts and treats. Try the sweet-and-tangy Medjool Date Salsa made with dates, tomatoes and chiles.

3 Rango Honey, Tempe: Add a touch of sweetness to your dishes with pure, raw honey straight from the Sonoran Desert, touting distinct flavors that come from wild sage, mesquite wood, Southwestern wildflowers and bright citrus groves.

4 Queen Creek Olive Mill, Queen Creek: This family-owned olive farm is known for its flavorful lineup of extra virgin olive oils, specialty vinegars and pickled snacks—think Meyer Lemon Olive Oil, Tequila Cask Balsamic Vinegar and Mesquite Smoked Almond Stuffed Olives.

5 Timbo's Spice, Gilbert: Spice things up with one of these handcrafted seasonings and rubs, such as the Adobo Spice, a chile-forward blend made in collaboration with local Chef Andres Jimenez.

6 Arizona Cactus Ranch, Green Valley:

Surrounded by wild Engelmann prickly pear cactus, this century-old cattle ranch hand-harvests the fruit buds in late summer to make all-natural prickly pear nectar with no added sugar or preservatives.

7 Iconic Cocktail Co., Phoenix: Elevate your at-home cocktail experience with specialty tonics, syrups, flavorings and mixers. The Prickly Pear Sour mix pairs perfectly with your choice of spirit for a pleasantly pink—and quintessentially Arizonan—drink.

8 Hayden Flour Mills, Queen Creek:

Stock up on stone-milled flour, artisan pastas and heritage grains from this flour mill, where you'll find options like White Sonora Wheat Pizza Flour and Yellow Corn Polenta made from locally grown ingredients.

UNIQUE DINING EXPERIENCES ACROSS ARIZONA

Variety is the spice of Arizona's most unforgettable culinary destinations. The food might spotlight Southwestern flavors like prickly pear and buffalo, or downhome fare like cowboy chili and farm-fresh date shakes. And the standout settings are just as diverse: Here, you can dine in a cave, on a steamboat, beside a burbling creek or amidst the ghosts of gunslingers.

BY KERIDWEN CORNELIUS

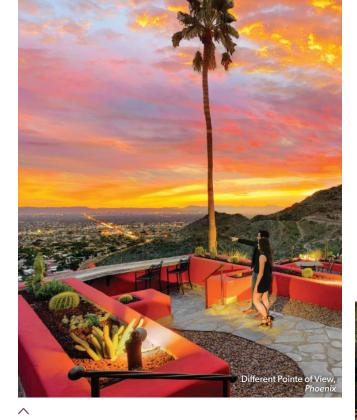

A completely kind of different Route 66 experience awaits in Winslow at La Posada—an antique-adorned 1929 hacienda designed by Mary Colter for the Santa Fe Railway Company. The hotel's highly acclaimed Turquoise Room restaurant celebrates Southwestern ingredients including tepary beans, prickly pear, bison and Navajo churro lamb. Stop in for a meal, and be sure to stroll through this architectural masterpiece, which has hosted such guests as Albert Einstein, Amelia Earhart and John Wayne.

You wouldn't expect to find the world's largest floating restaurant in the middle of a landlocked desert, but Arizona is full of unexpected encounters. Jádí To'ho Restaurant near Page floats at Antelope Point Marina on Lake Powell, so diners can cruise up to the eatery in a car or in a boat. Snag a seat on the patio and sip a prickly pear margarita while watching waves lap up to sienna sandstone formations.

With its turquoise and pink facade, checkerboard floor and automobile memorabilia, Mr. D'z Route 66 Diner near Kingman takes kitsch into overdrive. And that's exactly what travelers seek along the Mother Road. Play some 1950s tunes on the jukebox, slide into a booth, wash down a bacon cheeseburger with a homemade root beer and bask in the nostalgia.

Perched atop North Mountain in Phoenix, Different Pointe of View commands jaw-dropping views of the surrounding peaks and sunsets that give way to glowing city lights. But this beloved gem isn't just about patio panoramas and floor-to-ceiling windows. Thanks to exceptional service and Mediterranean-meets-Southwestern fare (think: guajillo-seared pork with roasted green chile-cilantro hummus), it's the Valley's longest consecutively

Picture the most romantic dining experience imaginable and you may conjure something like Cress on Oak Creek at L'Auberge de Sedona. Linen-draped tables are set on the banks of a serene, herbal-scented stream. Candles and lanterns set the sycamores aglow. Executive Chef Franck Desplechin invokes intoxicating flavors like lobster with chorizo oil or smoked chocolate soufflé. The setting is so sublime you may be inspired to start the next morning on the sun-dappled patio with a breakfast banana split.

Few restaurants boast walls that are 345 million years old. Then again, few eateries are tucked away in a network of caves 210 feet underground. That's what makes The Grotto at Grand Canyon Caverns near Peach Springs one of the most remarkable culinary experiences on the planet. Diners descend 21 stories in an elevator, tour the caverns, then sit at one of four tables to enjoy comfort food surrounded by craggy, otherworldly geology.

 The Grand Canyon's North Rim is the more serene and sylvan sister of the popular South Rim, and its 1928 lodge melds seamlessly with the setting, thanks to native wood beams thanks to native wood beams and Kaibab limestone walls. In the Grand Canyon Lodge Dining Room, it's worth the wait for a window seat, where you can drink in forest-fringed canyon views while digging into trout or buffalo tenderloin. When you're in Sedona, it's impossible to take your eyes off the paprika-and-chile-colored rocks. Fortunately, at Mariposa, you don't have to. The expansive patio sits atop a bluff overlooking miles of majestic mountains against an ever-changing sky. The scenery is as sensuous as beloved Chef Lisa Dahl's South American-inspired dishes, like wood-fired chorizo or beef empanadas with chimichurri. Architect Mary Colter designed the Grand Canyon's Desert View Watchtower, a monument inspired by the Ancestral Puebloan people who lived on the Colorado Plateau around 800 years ago. After exploring the tower, pop into Desert View Trading Post & Ice Cream to peruse handmade American Indian jewelry, baskets, wood carvings and rugs. Then grab an ice cream cone or homemade fudge and stroll along the South Rim, savoring sweet views of the canyon.

At Big Nose Kate's Saloon in Tombstone, history buffs can belly up to the bar where the Earps and Doc Holliday knocked back whiskeys. That long wooden bar is one of the only things left from the original building, the sumptuous Grand Hotel, which hosted many of this Wild West town's most famous gunfighters before it burned down in 1882. The current saloon—named after the brothel madame who was Holliday's longtime companion—keeps that cowboy spirit alive. From the Farm in Yuma is the place to visit if you're hankering for a taco, a date shake and an antique lamp. This quirky stop combines a farm stand offering local produce and honey, a charming tearoom, a vintage emporium and an outdoor grill shaded by a corrugated metal roof. With its shabby chic decor and vast mountain views, it's easy to see why it's also a popular wedding venue. Tortilla Flat is the launching point for The Dolly Steamboat dinner cruises, a Huckleberry Finnesque voyage in the desert. As the old-fashioned sternwheeler plies Canyon Lake, keep an eye out for bald eagles and bighorn sheep balancing on the cliffs. Or choose an astronomy dinner cruise and gaze at constellations and planets with astronomer Steve "Dr. Sky" Kates.

A bar with a curiously similar history is The Palace Restaurant and Saloon in Prescott-Arizona's oldest frontier saloon. The Earp brothers and Doc Holliday also drank at this Whiskey Row watering hole. This 1877 saloon was also destroyed in a fire. And the wooden bar was also salvaged from the burning building, when patrons carried it across the street. People do say that in a fire you save the thing most dear to you, and it's a good thing they did.

Callaghan Vineyards, Elgin

A WEEKEND IN WINE COUNTRY

Burgundy, Mendoza, Napa Valley—Arizona? While the state's wine regions might not yet have achieved an international level of fame, they're well worth a weekend trip. Explore what to sip and see, and where to stay, with these mini itineraries.

BY IVY MORRIS

SONOITA-ELGIN

Sip: The Sonoita AVA (American Viticultural Area) was the first in the state, established in 1984. The southeastern Arizona region is known for its Cabernet Sauvignon, Grenache, Syrah and Viognier grapes. Wines here taste best among the company of the joyful winemakers who are excited to share their craft. Try Callaghan Vineyards and Wilhelm Family Vineyards in Elgin and Rune Wines in Sonoita. See: Blink and you might miss the tiny community of Patagonia, just 15 minutes southwest of Sonoita. Blink and you also might miss the tiny, fluttering visitors that love the Paton Center for Hummingbirds, a birding haven. A dozen hummingbird species have been spotted here—a handful of the hundreds of bird species that have checked out the center's lush grounds. Stay: Stay at the Xanadu Ranch GetAway in Sonoita and take a shuttle to nearby wineries. Communal spaces include a porch with a koi pond, where you can take in Sonoita-Elgin's rolling, grass-covered hills during morning coffee or happy hour sunsets. Choose how you stay overnightaccommodations include several casitas (some have kitchens), RV hookups and even a stable for your horse.

VERDE VALLEY

Sip: Above Phoenix's heat and below Northern Arizona's chill, the Verde Valley wine region was named a 10Best pick in USA TODAY's Readers' Choice Awards. Standouts among the more than 20 winery tasting rooms include Arizona Stronghold Vineyards and Provisioner Wines & General Store in Cottonwood, D.A. Ranch and Oak Creek Vineyards & Winery in Cornville and Caduceus Cellars in Jerome. See: Hop aboard a renovated vintage train and enjoy a 20-mile journey through colorful Verde Canyon. Take in the view on the Verde Canyon Railroad in Clarkdale as narration takes you back in time—audio points out interesting sights among the red rocks and explores more than a century of history over four hours. Open-air viewing cars put you closer to the action. Stay: Located on the Verde Valley Wine Trail, a stay at The Vineyards Bed & Breakfast in Cornville puts you within walking distance of four of the six Page Springs/Cornville wineries. Hop in the B&B's Wine Trail Wagon (the owner's minivan) and catch a ride to wineries and tasting rooms-or there's always the onproperty tiki bar.

WILLCOX

Sip: Explore the vineyards, wineries and tasting rooms of the Willcox wine region of southeast Arizona, which grows 74% of Arizona's wine grapes and was granted AVA status. You could sip at every winery and tasting room in a weekend, but be sure to visit Coronado Vineyards, Keeling-Schaefer Vineyards and Zarpara Vineyard.

See: Explore decades of historical conflict at Fort Bowie National Historic Site, a former United States military post that was built after the Battle of Apache Pass in July 1862. It became the headquarters for the U.S. Army's fight against the Chiricahua Apaches. A 1.5-mile trail leads you to the visitor center and old Fort ruins. Stay: At the base of Chiricahua National Monument, Dos Cabezas Retreat in Willcox is a quiet property with stories to tell. Guest rooms are in historic adobe buildings, built in the 1870s and formerly owned by the president of the retired gold-, silver- and copper-producing Mascot Mine.

ADVENTURES FOR ALL ACCESSIBLE AND ADAPTIVE OUTDOOR EXPERIENCES

Arizona is a place of wild beauty, from sun-baked cactus forests to snow-drenched mountaintops. Thankfully, many of its outdoor destinations are accommodating to a range of ability levels, providing even more access to adventure, recreation and unforgettable experiences. See VisitArizona.com/plan/accessibility for more ideas.

WHEELCHAIR-ACCESSIBLE TRAILS

From state parks to national monuments, Arizona offers numerous outdoor destinations with wheelchair accessible trails.

Near the town of Camp Verde, Montezuma Castle National Monument attracts visitors eager to witness the impressive Sinagua cliff dwellings, viewable via the half-mile, paved Rimrock Trail. As an added bonus, your entrance fee to Montezuma Castle includes admission (valid for seven days) to Tuzigoot National Monument. There, both the visitor center and the Tavasci Marsh Overlook trail are fully accessible for wheelchairs.

In Sedona, Crescent Moon Ranch features two paved loops, totaling 1 mile, along Oak Creek where the iconic Cathedral Rock can be seen reflected in the water. The historic ranch house that gives the site its name is a popular photo op.

About 30 minutes west of Sedona, 1.5 miles of accessible trails circle three lagoons at Dead Horse Ranch State Park. Keen on spotting wildlife? The 0.25-mile Canopy Trail, which starts and ends at the River Day Use Area, is thick with birds and fauna.

In the Pinetop-Lakeside area, Woodland Lake Park Trail is a paved 1-mile trail that rounds Woodland Reservoir. Although water levels can be low at times, the trail is popular, especially with local birdwatchers. Expect to see walkers, cyclists and even those on horseback enjoying the trail.

Boyce Thompson Arboretum in

Superior is the oldest botanical garden in the state, featuring a mix of paved and compressed earth trails, including 1.5 miles of walking trails, and loops through the Wallace Desert Garden. Enjoy a well-designed cactus garden, in addition to a riparian area, an Australian forest, and herb and rose gardens. Guided trail tours are available for a nominal fee with advance registration.

Several trails cut through Phoenix's Papago Park, which is home to the Phoenix Zoo and Desert Botanical Garden. While the Crosscut Canal Path and Galvin Bikeway Trail both run north-south nearly 1.5 miles, the much shorter Nature Trail travels a half-mile through the heart of the park. Expand your options by considering the trails in the zoo or botanical garden. The Elliot Ramada Loop Trail, located across the street from Papago Park in Papago West Park, is a paved and dirt trail that loops 2.7 miles around red rock formations and buttes. Pause to appreciate the views of downtown Phoenix or to catch the sun setting over the city in the early evening.

Part of Scottsdale's McDowell Sonoran Preserve, the Jane Rau Interpretive Trail at Brown's Ranch navigates nearly half a mile through the area and serves as a great introduction to the flora and fauna of the Sonoran Desert. (Do note: The trail has higher than average sections of grading for an accessible trail as it was built to 2013 U.S. Forest Service trail accessibility standards.)

BRAILLE TRAIL

At the Elsie McCartney Sensory Garden in Glendale, people with visual impairments can experience the splendor of the outdoors strolling along the flat pathways, hearing water features and smelling the fragrant blooms of roses, lilies and lavender. A tactile map at the entry allows for an understanding of the garden's layout, and signage in Braille provides more information.

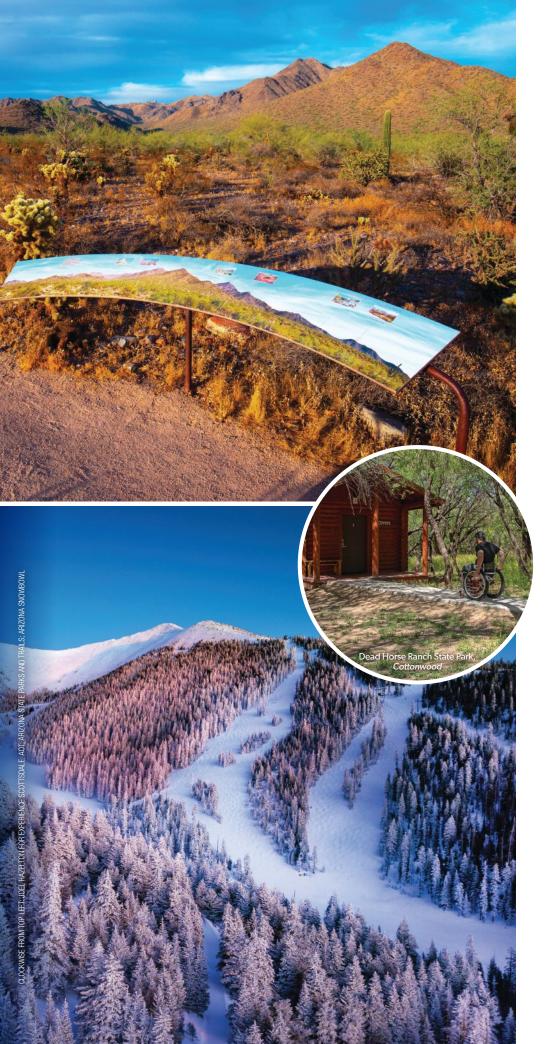

ADAPTIVE SNOWSPORTS

Arizona might be known for its desert landscapes, but come winter, the higher elevation areas transform into snowy wonderlands beckoning for outdoor recreation. Arizona Snowbowl, just north of Flagstaff, invites people of all ages and abilities to experience the thrill of zooming down its powdery runs with its on-site Ski and Snowboard School, which offers an adaptive ski/snowboard program featuring specialized equipment and professionally trained instructors, allowing even more people to enjoy wintertime adventures.

Arizona Snowbowl, Flagstaff

FOLLOW THE LEADER

With its rugged terrain and variable conditions, the outdoors can be intimidating. Thankfully, adventure guide companies can help bridge that gap, bringing everyone from nature newcomers to those with varying ability levels into the pristine beauty and serene solitude of the wilderness—all while providing a safer and more enjoyable experience.

Working as an adventure guide for more than 14 years, Josh Kloepping—now in business development for REI Co-Op—has led people from all walks of life, ages and experience levels into Arizona's rugged landscapes for unforgettable adventures. Perhaps his most memorable, however, have been the Operation Canyon Rising excursions, leading wounded veterans, many with one or even two amputations, and Gold Star widows on five-day hikes into the Grand Canyon on the anniversary of 9/11.

"To get up and out of the canyon is no easy feat," says Kloepping. "You just have to take it in small steps. You've got to set a goal and work toward achieving that goal. Once you do that, you build this confidence, and you learn to overcome your limitations."

Those hikes begin on the North Rim of the Grand Canyon, continue 14 miles down into the canyon to Phantom Ranch, and then up and out to the South Rim, with family and supporters cheering on hikers at the end point.

For those not quite ready to commit to multiday expeditions, Kloepping emphasizes the importance of just being outdoors, even closer to home. "Nature reminds you to just slow down and notice the small things, the little details," he says. "It grounds us—it gets us connected to what's truly important: Being in the now."

OPEN-AIR DINING Enjoy the sunshine and dine al fresco at one

Enjoy the sunshine and dine al fresco at one of these popular Phoenix restaurants.

BY TERESA BITLER

THE FARM AT SOUTH MOUNTAIN

Originally a pecan farm with more than 100 trees, the property today features three restaurants, one for each meal. In the morning, dine outdoors on Morning Glory Café's fresh baked goods and Southwestern breakfasts. Or, come for lunch when The Farm Kitchen serves seasonal salads and sandwiches you can enjoy at picnic tables under pecan trees. For dinner, reserve a patio table at Quiessence, a favorite with locals for true farm-totable cuisine.

UPSTAIRS AT FLINT This open-air rooftop cocktail lounge with plush chairs and chandeliers overlooks Biltmore Fashion Park. Arrive early for a table on the perimeter and start with a creative cocktail or glass of premium wine. You can order small plates like the woodfire-grilled octopus to complement your drinks or a Mediterranean-influenced entrée from Flint by Baltaire downstairs. A section of the main restaurant also has a retractable roof for additional outdoor dining.

MATCH MARKET AND BAR

Located on the first floor of boutique art hotel FOUND:RE, this café is open for gourmet breakfasts and coffee in the morning, and pizza, burgers, bowls and salads the rest of the day. You also can pick up locally made gifts and essentials like eggs from the market or order a cocktail, wine or beer from the bar. Score a table on the patio to watch the daily bustle of the Downtown Phoenix Arts District.

OUTRIDER ROOFTOP LOUNGE AT CANOPY BY HILTON This popular rooftop dining space in Old Town Scottsdale delivers 180-degree views of Camelback Mountain and the city's arts district along with a sophisticated menu of shareable plates, sandwiches, salads and craft cocktails. Munch on chili-rubbed chicken wings or pulled pork tacos while sipping libations like the Peach Patio Punch, featuring house-made peach lemonade and pineapple rum.

THE COFFEE SHOP Coffee drinks and baked goods aren't the only items on the menu at this neighborhood Gilbert spot. The Coffee Shop makes fresh burritos, egg dishes and waffles in the morning and unhingeyour-mouth sandwiches for lunch and dinner. Indulge in the tasty dishes on the large, brick patio out back or at a picnic table nearby, but be sure to save room for dessert. The cupcakes here garnered national attention when part owner Jessica Cuff won Food Network's Cupcake Wars.

BOARD & BATTEN Open Tuesday through Saturday for lunch and dinner, this Mesa restaurant has an expansive patio with charming string lights, lush trees and a firepit surrounded by lounge seating. Kick off your meal with shareable plates like charcuterie, then savor seasonal entrées featuring New York strip steak, chicken, Duroc pork, scallops, duck breast and lamb. Barrel-aged cocktails, premium wines, local beers and craft cider complement your meal.

Anchoring the far western edge of the Phoenix Valley is White Tank Mountain Regional Park. The 30,000-acre park spreads across desert lowlands and sharp-rising peaks. Beautiful during the day, White Tank proves equally spectacular once the sun goes down. This is where stargazers come for celestial exploration. Dark skies far from city lights offer a portal into the cosmos. This dreamy desert nightscape gives everyone a chance to admire the glittering canopy above. Here the heavens drop into your lap.

No one appreciates a day spent on the water like a desert dweller. Go Paddle AZ provides the tools for quick and memorable escapes. They rent kayaks and stand-up paddleboards at Pleasant Harbor Marina on Lake Pleasant. Tucked away amid rolling hills north of Peoria, Lake Pleasant is a 10,000acre reservoir with miles of coastline and a vast expanse of open water to explore. Go Paddle AZ also offers sunset and full moon kayak tours.

Water in the desert attracts wildlife as well as people. The Riparian Preserve at Water Ranch creates a lush oasis in the heart of Gilbert, providing a welcome habitat for mammals, reptiles and nearly 300 species of birds. The appearance of so many winged visitors prompted the National Audubon Society to designate the seven aquifer recharge basins as an Important Bird Area. Birders, hikers and bikers will enjoy miles of meandering trails. Or stop for a picnic and bask in the serenade of birdsong echoing among the branches.

Lost Dutchman State Park laps

at the base of the Superstition Mountains, a sudden wall of dark stone rising from the desert floor. Here civilization ends and wilderness begins. Named for a fabled gold mine said to lay hidden deep in the volcanic fortress of the mountains, the park is crisscrossed with hiking trails. Yet despite fierce terrain, springtime brings out a softer side to Lost Dutchman. Following wet winters, the sloping foothills blaze with wildflowers, most prominently poppies and brittlebush. Witness those rugged cliffs floating above a sea of yellow blossoms and you begin to understand the witchery of the desert, a land of drama and poetry.

MAGICAL MOMENTS

If you really want to get in touch with the spirit of the American West, head out into nature. Arizona offers spectacular outdoor adventures, from stunning scenic drives to awesome Sonoran Desert hikes. Go ahead, enjoy a magical moment.

Start with a drive along picturesque Catalina Highway Scenic Drive and pull over at the many overlooks along the way, such as Windy Point Vista. Stroll the pedestrian walkway and seek out one of the panoramic viewing areas, where you'll be treated to sweeping valley views of Tucson and the Pusch Ridge Wilderness below.

Just outside Tucson, Saguaro National Park is an iconic desert escape that is home to 25 cactus species. Trek among towering saguaro, spiky cholla and globe-like barrel cacti, and keep an eye out for all manner of wildlife, such as roadrunners, kangaroo rats and even Gila monsters.

For a tamer—but no less spectacular—nature trip, Tucson Botanical Gardens features expertly cultivated plant life in its 17 diverse gardens showcasing everything from pollinator-friendly plants to traditional American Indian crops. October through May, surround yourself with fluttering tropical butterflies at its Cox Butterfly & Orchid Pavilion.

In Ajo, take off on a wilderness hike through Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument. Miles of trails fan out into the Sonoran Desert, where you'll encounter canyons teeming with plants and wildlife (including tortoises and javelinas). During the winter months, park rangers host fun educational programs.

At Chiricahua National Monument

in Willcox, take the 8-mile paved scenic drive or hike 17 miles of day-use trails to get a full sense of this rare geographical showcase of massive columns, slender spires and impossibly balanced rocks—the result of a large-scale volcanic eruption 27 million years ago.

Or, take your adventures to a new level—underground, that is—at Colossal Cave Mountain Park in Vail, where the guided Classic Cave Tour will take you six stories deep. Learn about the cave's history and see ancient formations like stalactites and stalagmites. Back on land, saddle up for a horseback ride to explore the idyllic La Posta Quemada Ranch in the cactusstudded Sonoran Desert.

Another subterranean treasure, Kartchner Caverns State Park in Benson features delicate soda straw stalactites, colossal columns and the world's most extensive formation of brushite moonmilk. Go on a guided tour to learn about the history, geology and wildlife within the caverns, and see educational exhibits at the Discovery Center.

DINING WITH A VIEW

BY NORA BURBA TRULSSON

In Southern Arizona, dining out often comes with views of mountains, desert and golf courses.

Against a backdrop of craggy Pusch Ridge, Epazote Kitchen at El Conquistador Tucson Hilton serves up locally inspired dishes like duck confit quesadillas and chipotle calabacita pasta. Get a table on the patio to hear Larry Redhouse play Native flute music at dusk.

Nearby, The Grill at Hacienda del Sol provides ringside seats for views of desert, golf course and the Catalina Mountains, not to mention fine dining and a Wine Spectator-lauded wine list. Try the gnocchi, zhuzhed-up Southwest style, with guajillo chile sauce.

Set in a 49-acre botanical garden, Tucson's Tohono Chul Garden Bistro is surrounded by wildflowers and palo verde trees—plus views of the Catalina Mountains. Peruse their daily brunch menu for choices like prickly pear margaritas, avocado toast and pancakes with a "charcuterie" of topping choices.

Just north of Tucson, Noble Hops in Oro Valley also has va-va-voom views of the Catalina Mountains from its ample patio. The gastropub tours the world with its ever-changing selection of craft beers and offers comfort food like burgers, wings and gravy-smothered fries.

South of Tucson, Stables Ranch Grille at Tubac Golf Resort is a historic setting surrounded by views of golf greens, towering cottonwoods and the Santa Rita Mountains from its spacious patio. In between gazing, dig into brown rice penne pasta with chicken and vegetables or the signature pork schnitzel.

ARTIST'S ESCAPE A DAY TRIP TO TUBAC

BY NORA BURBA TRULSSON

Framed by the Santa Rita Mountains and enormous cottonwoods along the Santa Cruz River, Tubac has long attracted artists who come for the scenery as well the many historic adobe buildings. Less than an hour's drive from downtown Tucson, the charming town makes for an easy day trip.

Morning: Tubac is Arizona's oldest European settlement, with a Spanish garrison established near the river in 1752. Meander through 1 Tubac Presidio State Historic Park, which preserves the garrison's ramparts. The museum offers a Tubac timeline, while a gravel path leads to other buildings featuring art exhibits and more history.

Lunch: Sit on the patio at 2 Soto's Pk Outpost and order Mexican specialties such as fajitas, chile relleno, chimichangas and tacos, and maybe even a mango margarita or two.

Afternoon: Take time to browse Tubac's many galleries and artful shops. Established in 1961, 3 Tubac Center of the Arts is the epicenter of the community's art scene, with exhibits, a shop, live performances, workshops, speakers and more. Just off Tubac's central plaza, 4 Casa Maya de Mexico's colorful interior is stocked with handmade crafts from south of the border, while nearby Old Presidio Traders is filled to the rafters with American Indian jewelry and arts. A short walk away, 5 La Entrada de Tubac offers a mix of shops, restaurants and galleries, including Feminine Mystique Art Gallery, which champions the work of women.

Dinner: Founded in 1927 in Nogales, Mexico, 6 Elvira's Restaurant in Tubac is dark, sexy and modern, providing a sophisticated spot to sample chicken mole poblano or salsa-topped grilled shrimp. Toast your Tubac trip with a tamarind margarita.

Picture-Perfect Plates

From showstopping burgers to creative breakfast concoctions, Flagstaff's culinary scene is the stuff of foodie dreams—and with one scroll through Instagram, it's easy to see why. Satisfy your own cravings with these must-taste picks around town. And don't forget to post a picture or two while you're at it.

1 Snap a picture before you bite into Diablo Burger's Señor Smoke: a grass-fed beef burger piled with ancho grilled onions, grilled avocado, thick-sliced bacon, cilantro and sriracha mayonnaise. 2 The daily fish special at Brix Restaurant & Wine Bar bursts with seasonal ingredients—in this case, sunchokes, Spanish chorizo and roasted tomatoes in a tomato-fennel broth, topped with Calabrian chile and an herb salad. 3 Homey and hearty, the Ratatouille at Tinderbox Kitchen touts smoked eggplant, carrots and zucchini on a bed of ancient grains pilaf, sprinkled with Parmesan cheese, walnuts and basil chips.
4 Bring your appetite to Josephine's Modern American Bistro, where the charred flatiron steak comes with a generous scoop of guacamole and a Caesar salad with cheese crisps instead of croutons. 5 At The Toasted Owl, kick off your day with a decadent order of Big Fat French Toast: Texas toast dipped in cinnamon-vanilla egg mix, served with a side of sausage, bacon or potatoes. 6 The Little Gem Caesar at Shift Kitchen + Bar comes loaded with flavor—not surprising, considering it's tossed with pine nuts, crostini, boquerones (mild white anchovy fillets) and lemon. 7 On Pizzicletta's wood-fired Amore Oi Mari, creamy mascarpone and salty pecorino cheeses come together with luscious San Daniele prosciutto, tart arugula and lemon olive oil for a bright, light pizza pie. 8 At MartAnne's Breakfast Palace, the wow-worthy Green Chile Omelette is loaded with green chile pork and cheese, smothered in green chile sauce and served alongside rice, beans, hash browns and a flour tortilla. 9 Light and fluffy on the inside and delicately ridged and dusted in cinnamon-sugar on the outside, the Churro Donut at Tourist Home All Day Cafe is a French cruller-meets-churro, offering the best of both worlds in one delightful delicacy.

A STORE AND A STOR

With its lush forests and higher elevation areas, Northern Arizona is a snow lover's winter wonderland. Take your pick from outdoor snow adventures, whether you're an absolute beginner or a seasoned snow bunny.

Less than 15 miles from Flagstaff, Arizona Snowbowl boasts an average of 260 inches of snowfall and the largest beginner terrain in the Southwest. Ski or snowboard down your choice of 55 runs or try something new with a ski-bike ride, ideal for an array of ability levels.

At nearby Arizona Nordic Village, revel in a serene retreat of sugar-hued vistas and some 30 miles of cross-country skiing and snowshoeing trails.

On White Mountain Apache Tribal Lands, you can ski, snowboard and ski-bike at Sunrise Park Resort, where coasting downhill includes magnificent views of the surrounding pines and open sky.

INCREDIBLE Landscapes

Some of the Southwest's most unique landscapes can be found in Northern Arizona.

VERMILION CLIFFS NATIONAL MONUMENT

Undulating swirls of red and yellow sandstone, dramatic red cliffs and uncommon wildlife such as endangered California condors are just some of the draws to this 280,000-acre monument. Most roads require four-wheel drive—and the most notable sights require a permit—but the rewards are worth the effort.

METEOR CRATER NATURAL LANDMARK, WINSLOW

Approximately 50,000 years ago, a meteor slammed into the earth with the force of more than 20 million tons of TNT, creating a crater a mile across and more than 500 feet deep. Go on the 45-minute guided rim tour to learn about this epic event.

SUNSET CRATER VOLCANO NATIONAL MONUMENT

This spot looks so out of this world that parts of it doubled for the moon when astronauts needed a place to train for lunar landings. Explore this lava-altered landscape for yourself on a hike through loose cinder at the flow's edge.

PETRIFIED FOREST NATIONAL PARK

Not a forest in the traditional sense, this national park amazes with views of colorful mesas, buttes and badlands—not to mention the fossilized wood the park is named for, as well as petroglyphs, hoodoos and a stretch of historic Route 66.

Morning: Past is present at 1 Gold King Mine and Ghost Town, a spot where gold—not copper—was struck in 1890. Old buildings, antique artifacts and vintage vehicles dot the grounds. Gold panning and a petting zoo keep kids in awe.

Lunch: Located in an 1899 building, 2 The Clinkscale is Jerome's newest restaurant (and hotel), offering everything from cauliflower steak burgers to scallops with cilantro lime couscous—plus craft cocktails, naturally. Experience the terroir of the Verde Valley wine region by strolling up the street to the tasting room of 3 Caduceus Cellars and Merkin Vineyards, Arizona wineries founded by alternative rock icon Maynard James Keenan.

Afternoon: Walk off lunch and wine with retail browsing. Located in a 1917 building, 4 Jerome Artists Cooperative Gallery showcases work by dozens of local artists, and nearby 5 Pura Vida Gallery focuses on handicrafts such as home decor and glassware. Meanwhile, 6 Nellie Bly is said to be the largest kaleidoscope shop on the planet, filled with handcrafted eye candy plus marbles and dichroic jewelry.

Dinner: Toast your Jerome journey with a glass of Arizona wine from the view-grabbing patios of 7 Asylum Restaurant, perched atop the hill, where signature dishes include roasted butternut squash soup and grilled achiote pork tenderloin.

3 Places to Time Travel

From a frontier governor's mansion and a 19th-century military base to a heritage railroad, North Central Arizona offers a trove of historic attractions.

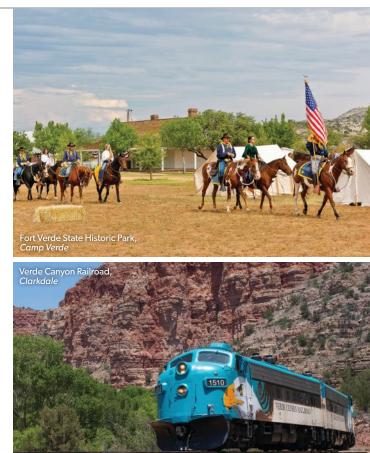

BY NORA BURBA TRULSSON

l Those with a penchant for the past will enjoy a few of North Central Arizona's historic highlights. In Prescott, Sharlot Hall Museum is a shady, 4-acre site dotted with 11 buildings, including the two-story, territorial-era governor's mansion, circa 1864; and the 1877 Bashford House, a fanciful Victorian. The main exhibit building tells the tale of Arizona's pre-history, Prescott's timeline and the story of museum founder Hall, a poet and historian.

 $2\,$ Fort Verde State Historic Park in nearby Camp Verde was built as an Army outpost during the Central Arizona Indian Wars, active from 1871 until 1891. Buffalo Soldiers also served at the fort, starting in 1885. Wander the square to see four remaining examples of 19th-century military architecture, including living quarters and the administration building.

3 Finally, do some literal time traveling with a trek on the scenic Verde Canyon Railroad, which has 1950s-era FP7 locomotives pulling restored vintage passenger cars from the Clarkdale depot through high desert, past dramatic cliffs and along a river on tracks originally built for hauling copper from nearby mines. Keep your eyes peeled for eagles and cliff dwellings.

BY TERESA BITLER

Arizona boasts some of the most scenic landscapes in the Southwest. Make the most of your time here by grabbing a lunch to go and having a picnic at these state parks and national forests.

GRAB

Fargo's Steakhouse is a popular Payson steakhouse that serves gourmet sandwiches, wraps, burgers and salads to-go for lunch. Choose from traditional options like the hot pastrami or creative ones like the coconutcrusted salmon sandwich.

Routinely voted the best in Sedona, the massive sandwiches at Sedona Memories Bakery Café are made with your choice of fresh homemade bread and piled with premium meats and veggies. Order over the phone, and your takeout comes with a free cookie.

GO

At Tonto Natural Bridge State Park, you'll find shaded picnic tables a short walk from the world's largest travertine bridge and near the trailheads leading down to its base. Be prepared for a steep descent and minor bouldering.

As one of the most photographed landscapes in Sedona, Crescent Moon Picnic Site offers views of Cathedral Rock reflected in the waters of Oak Creek. Go early in the morning or on a weekday to secure a spot.

Fresca Café is a New York-style deli and eatery that imports its meats and cheeses from Italy and pairs them with local ingredients for paninis, salads and pizza. Get yours to go with a scoop of homemade gelato or sorbetto. Savor your lunch at Lynx Lake North Shore Picnic Site, perched on the shores of Lynx Lake, a 55acre, man-made lake. After you eat, fish for trout, hike the 2.3-mile loop trail or watch for wildlife from a fixed viewing scope.

If beauty is in the eye of the beholder, so is responsibility.

As a leader in sustainability practices, we place a strong emphasis on preserving our unspoiled landscape. By asking you to take the Sedona Cares Pledge, we're expressing our deep desire to maintain our serene way of life and to protect our natural surroundings – ensuring a memorable experience for you today, and always.

Make your promise to respect the environment we all share.

AMERICAN INDIAN TRIBES

Fort Yuma-Quechan Tribe Yuma 760-572-0213, quechantribe.com Bordering Arizona, California and Mexico, these tribal lands include the picturesque Sunrise Point Park and the Yuma East Wetlands, both along the Colorado River. Purchase beautiful beadwork and other crafts by tribal members. Explore the tribe's history at the Fort Yuma-Quechan Museum, the Senior Center Gift Shop and the Cultural Center at Quechan Casino Resort.

Hualapai Tribe Peach Springs 928-769-2636,

grandcanyonwest.com

The Hualapai Tribe is located on one million acres of Hualapai ancestral lands. The modern northern boundary of the reservation is along the Grand Canyon and the Colorado River. Grand Canyon Resort Corporation is owned and operated by the Hualapai Tribe. The Hualapai Tribe operates Grand Canyon West, home of the Skywalk, and Hualapai River Runners, which offers one- and two-day whitewater rafting expeditions on the Colorado River.

511 TRAVELER INFORMATION SERVICE

The Arizona Department of Transportation's 511 Traveler Information Service provides information and updates on road closures, construction and delays, as well as public transit services, major airports, tourism, weather and more. 511 Traveler Information Service: dial 511, AZ511.gov, Twitter @ArizonaDOT.

TIME ZONE

Arizona is in the Mountain Standard time zone. With the exception of the Navajo Nation in Northern Arizona, the state does not observe daylight savings time.

AMERICAN INDIAN LANDS

The 22 American Indian communities in Arizona offer a multitude of recreational and cultural attractions, casinos and scenery that make their tribal lands—covering about 25 percent of the state—highly sought-after destinations and vacation spots. For tribal land etiquette tips and additional information, see VisitArizona.com/ places/american-indian.

TRAVELING BY AIR

Arizona's airports make it easy to reach your destination. Most travelers flying into Arizona will find themselves at Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport (PHX)—named the country's best large airport in 2019 by The Wall Street Journal-which is the largest airport in the state, serving more than 46 million total passengers in 2019. Tucson International Airport (TUS) serves more than 3.6 million passengers annually via eight airlines that offer more than 50 departures daily to 19 nonstop destinations. Phoenix-Mesa Gateway Airport (AZA) hosts three airlines offering nonstop service to more than 45 destinations. Grand Canyon National Park Airport (GCN), located 7 miles from the South Rim, offers limited service. Yuma International Airport (YUM) provides service to Phoenix and Dallas-Fort Worth via American Airlines. Flagstaff Pulliam Airport (FLG) offers service to Phoenix and Dallas/Fort Worth via American Airlines, as well as service to Denver via United Airlines. Prescott Regional Airport (PRC) offers nonstop service to Denver and Los Angeles via United Airlines. For airline and flight information, contact each airport individually.

SHUTTLE SERVICE

No matter where your destination is in Arizona, ground transportation is easily accessible. Visit the websites of Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport, Tucson International Airport and Phoenix-Mesa Gateway Airport for companies currently offering shuttle service between airports and cities throughout the state.

CAR RENTAL

National car rental companies offer service at both the Phoenix and Tucson airports. At Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport, shuttles ferry passengers to a separate, state-ofthe-art car rental complex, with extension of the PHX Sky Train coming in 2022.

LOCAL BUS & LIGHT RAIL

In the greater Phoenix area, Valley Metro Rail provides speedy rail service from Central Phoenix, through downtown Phoenix and Tempe's Arizona State University campus and into Mesa. The convenient PHX Sky Train connection delivers riders right to Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport. Valley Metro buses provide public transportation throughout the entire greater Phoenix area. In Metro Tucson, Sun Tran buses have transit centers located at major destinations throughout the city, and the Sun Link is a 3.9-mile streetcar route connecting five distinct districts.

RAILROAD & INTERCITY BUS

With stops in the major metropolitan areas, as well as in many other destinations around the state, trains and buses are viable options for traveling around The Grand Canyon State. Amtrak offers two routes: Southwest Chief route through Flagstaff and Sunset Limited/Texas Eagle route through Tucson. Greyhound offers intercity routes, with stations throughout the state. Check websites for complete station lists.

COVID-19 Safety Information

When you're ready to explore the wonder of Arizona again, we'll be here to welcome you back. The Arizona Office of Tourism, along with state and national partners, continues to monitor the COVID-19 pandemic. The resources below provide information to help travelers plan visits to and within the state.

WHAT'S OPEN

In response to the situation surrounding the novel coronavirus, or COVID-19, some of Arizona's tourism businesses were closed, including attractions, museums, parks and hotels, as well as some of the tribal tourism-related businesses, such as casinos and parks like Monument Valley Navajo Tribal Park. As COVID-19 cases have dropped, many of these businesses have reopened, while others continue to remain closed or offer limited services. We encourage all travelers to reach out to businesses directly prior to visiting to ensure their reopening status, hours of operation and any specific guidelines that you may need to follow.

FOLLOW PROPER SAFETY PROTOCOLS

The Arizona Department of Health Services urges visitors to practice the following while traveling (those at higher risk for severe illness, take extra precautions):

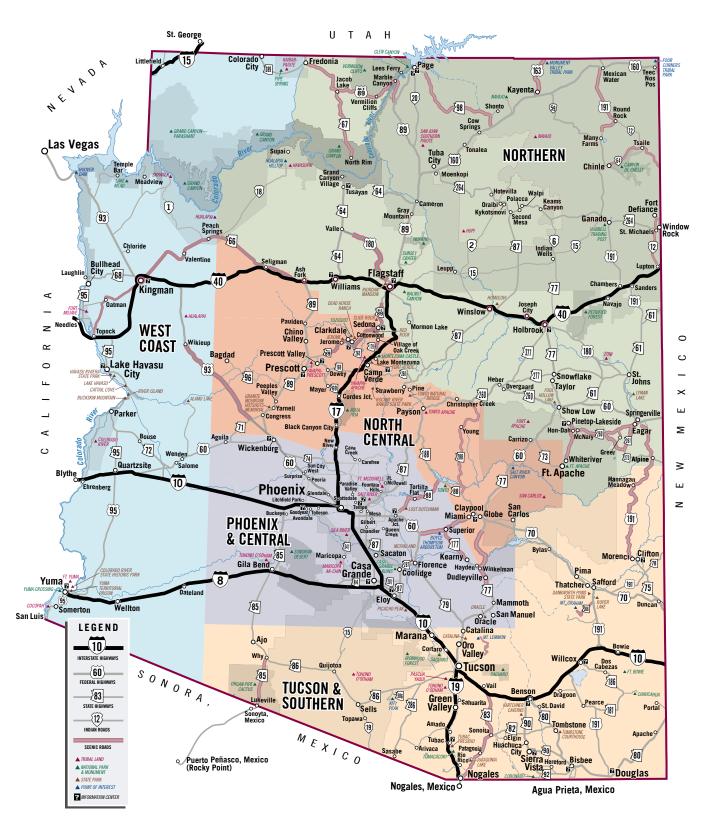

- Stay home if you're feeling sick or showing symptoms.
- For extra precaution, wear a mask that covers your mouth and nose when out in public.
- Do not touch your eyes, nose or mouth.

- If possible, use touchless payment (available on most smartphones through your credit card or bank). If you must handle money, a card, or use a keypad, use hand sanitizer after paying.
- After leaving an establishment, use a hand sanitizer that contains at least 60% alcohol.
- When you get home or back to your lodging, wash your hands with soap and water for at least 20 seconds.

AZSAFE + CLEAN CERTIFIED LODGING OPTIONS

In response to the COVID-19 global pandemic, Arizona Lodging & Tourism Association worked with the American Hotel and Lodging Association's Safe Stay initiative to establish a unified standard for safety and cleanliness. This program builds upon sanitation best practices, protocols and recommendations from public health experts and hospitality brands to create a clean, safe and inviting environment for travelers. AzITA members that can verify they meet these standards will be able to display a badge. Learn more at azIta.com/azsafe.
